

County Clerk's Office Makes Very
Excellent Record*SURPLUS EARNINGS AL-
MOST $19,000 in 3 YEARS

Albion F. Delander, candidate for the Republican nomination for county clerk, is without opposition in the primary election but is deserving of a large vote next Tuesday in appreciation of his service to the people of this county in this his first term in office.

In the three years that Mr. Delander has served as county clerk, he has turned over to the county treasurer in surplus earnings of his office, over and above his salary, the salaries of his assistants, and incidentals expenses of his office, the sum of $18,900.97.

Through Mr. Delander's efforts, a new, complete and modern index system of all the records of births, deaths and marriages of the county has been devised and is now in the process of completion. Over 52,000 births and 32,000 deaths are already re-indexed to date. Much time and effort will be saved in the searching of these records, due to this new system.

During the term of his predecessor, the late Edwin G. Young, the tax department of the county clerk's office reached a high point of efficiency. This efficiency has not only been maintained by Mr. Delander, but carried a step farther by adding improvements when possible, and revising and simplifying the work when results warranted it.

The results are that to-day the tax work is completed and the tax books delivered to the county treasurer in less time and with less expense than heretofore possible.

When Mr. Delander was making his campaign for office four years ago, he pledged himself to giving the people of this county courteous, careful and helpful service. This pledge has been fulfilled.

In his present campaign, he has renewed this pledge to give to all the people of the county, the same courteous, careful and helpful service that he has rendered in the past.

John Kimmel Hurt
When Buggy Tips
Over in Snow Drift

John Kimmel and family of Tinley Park had a close call in a serious accident that befell them last Thursday. Mr. Kimmel and his family were driving toward Tinley Park in a closed buggy and ran into a deep snow drift and the buggy tipped over and Mr. Kimmel was thrown face downward against the glass windows of the buggy, the broken glass cutting a deep gash on his forehead which required 11 stitches to close and he was otherwise cut about the face. Fortunately the team stopped at once. None of the other members of the family were hurt. Mr. Kimmel was brought to Tinley Park to the office of Dr. Eckstadt who dressed his wounds.

TONN'S ORCHESTRA IS STILL IN BUSINESS

A rumor has been current that Tonn's Novelty Syncopators of Mokena had blown up, but Mr. Tonn flatly denies the report. He says that only a slight change has been made in the personnel of the Orchestra by the addition of a new drummer and banjo player. Mr. Tonn says he is ready to book engagements at any time.

Tinley Park Council Grants 50 Year
Gas Franchise to Public Service

The village board of Tinley Park passed an ordinance Monday night granting a fifty year franchise to the Public Service Co., for the use of the streets and alleys of the village for the installation of gas mains. The Public Service Co., agreed to put up a $5,000 indemnity bond to protect the village against any damage that might be occasioned during the installation work.

In commenting on the board's action, Mayor Andres stated that the Public Service has prepared a uniform ordinance which they present to each village board through whose village they wish to lay their gas mains, for adoption.

Gas mains have been laid as far as Oak Lawn and it is understood that Palos Park and Orland are also on the list for this service.

Frankfort, Mokena and Matteson are also vitally interested in this project and the boards of these villages will perhaps grant the company similar franchise rights as has Tinley Park.

It is understood that it may take a year yet before the gas mains are laid. They will be extended from Blue Island. It is proposed to follow the highways from village to village and those farmers located near the highways will also have an opportunity of having gas piped to their farm homes.

Much credit is due Mayor Andres that these communities are to be supplied with gas as he has had the matter up with the Public Service Company for sometime.

Bremen Loses Heavily In Test

Bremen township has lost heavily during the recent cow testing. It is said that in all over 300 cows were condemned and have been shipped to the yards. Out of 310 cows tested at one period, 240 reacted.

Angelo Dini lost 24 head, Mrs. Rosa Lanfrusti lost her entire herd as also did Wm. Andres and many other dairymen. It is doubtful if these dairymen will take up the dairy business again as they fear if they do buy a new herd of tested cattle they might also go down in the next test.

Reports have gone out that cattle condemned are being inhumanely treated at the yards, some not being milked for days and allowed to be out in the cold, it is said. If the average farmer did a stunt like that the Humane Society would be on his trail pretty quick.

Those farmers who have refused to test their cows but have been skimming the milk and using the cream to make butter are up against a snag as many store keepers are refusing to buy butter made from cream from untested cattle. They claim they cannot resell such butter in the Chicago butter market.

An order has gone out that all testing be ended for the time being as the state has not sufficient funds with which to meet all claims for cattle condemned. On the other hand it is understood that Dr. J. J. Lintner, federal veterinarian says that testing is to continue.

Primary Next Tues.

Next Tuesday is the day of the big noise when the state wide primaries will be held. Every voter should exercise his or her rights, and vote. The time to get good men in office is now and it is up to the voters to turn out in force on primary day and nominate their candidate for the nomination is equivalent to an election. Remember the day, Tuesday, April 13 and above all REMEMBER to vote!

Mokena School Election To Be Hot

Mokena is going to have a red hot school election Saturday afternoon of this week between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the Mokena village hall. The big issue is, the proposition whether or not the school board should purchase a new school site for not more than $4,500. Considerable opposition to the site is being manifested.

The term of Elmer L. Cooper as school director has expired and he is up for re-election. Mr. Cooper has made a very efficient official during his term of office. Peter Spiess is also a candidate for this office.

Judge Cowing of Will County Dies

Judge George J. Cowing, judge of the county court of Will County for the past 20 years, died at his home in Joliet Wednesday morning following a lingering illness. He was 67 years old. For the past 7 or 8 years his health has been very poor.

Judge Cowing was born March 25, 1859 in Peotone, township. In 1884 he graduated from the University of Michigan. In the same year he was admitted to the bar. He was elected to the county bench Nov. 6, 1906. His fifth successive term on the bench would have expired next December. He was a candidate for renomination this year, but owing to the very poor condition of his health, he withdrew from the race a few weeks ago.

The funeral will be held from the Richard Street M. E. church Friday afternoon. Joliet Commandery No. 4 Knights Templar will be in charge.

Orland Twp. Has Hot Election

Orland Township had a real election Tuesday, over 400 votes being cast. There was sharp opposition for Assessor and Collector. Martin Smith ran for re-election and received 258 votes, while his opponent, C. A. Steinhagen got 130 votes. In the collector race Fred E. Yunker received 262 votes and Albert Habenicht 127 votes. The officers elected are: Supervisor, Chas. Doer; Town Clerk, Joseph Creer; Assessor, Martin Smith; Collector, Fred E. Yunker; School Trustee, Chas. Habenicht; Justice of the Peace, Louis Ratschke; Constable, Van Buren Knox.

The special ballot on the hard road proposition carried by 93 majority.

I wish to thank all the voters of Orland Township for their kind support of my candidacy for Collector at the polls Tuesday. Results—Fred E. Yunker, 262 votes, Albert Habenicht, 127 votes.

RESULTS IN GREEN GARDEN

Without opposition the Republican ticket went over in Green Garden township. Those elected are: Theodore Knickrehn, Assessor; Emil Deist, Town Clerk; Geo. The proposition to oil the roads of the township, expending 30 cents out of each $100 of assessed valuation was defeated, 52 votes being cast against the levy and 11 votes for it.

Will County to Vote
On Forest Preserve
Question Next Fall

Now that "Spring, Spring, the Giddy Young Thing," is so shy about appearing, it might be well to think about Forest Preserves to restore our lost hopes. The charm of the forest changes but it never ceases. Those who have studied snow tracks and cooked their bacon over a fagot fire in the solitude of a real forest will endorse this with a rising vote. But our trees are vanishing at the same speed that all things move in this swift day. With the trees are also going our streams and lakes and water supplies; our cool summer breezes and our army of bird friends.

What are we going to do about it? The Forest Preserve Committee has tried to give the Rotarians the necessary arguments with which to persuade the people of Will County that Will County should and must save for all the people the few remaining pieces of wood lots left in our county. To do this the friends of trees and of the whole people must vote for Forest Preserves.

We are taking the first legal step. Petitions are being printed so that the matter may be laid before the Judge of the Circuit Court and a public hearing given. Five hundred citizens of this county must petition the court. Rotarians will soon be given the opportunity of signing one of these petitions.

If all goes as it should, the matter will come up for voting next Fall. In the meantime it is our plan to put on a County-wide campaign. Mr. Wheeler of the U. S. Forest Service may be with us again. He has a very happy memory of his visit here, and will return if he can do so.

It is very desirable that all Civic Betterment Organizations shall join in pushing this enterprise along. There is no man, woman, child, or charity, that will not be benefited by forest playgrounds. We must get them now. For soon THERE WILL BE NOTHING TO PRESERVE.

Talk, shout and sing it every where, and always. Seek for the committee opportunities to get it before the public in all parts of the County, by speakers, radio, or printers' ink.

The Law Makes The County Treasurer a Strong Factor in Making Assessments

The laws of the State of Illinois as enacted in 1898 and revised in 1923, make the County Treasurer ex officio supervisor of assessments in his county. Whose duty is to assemble all assessors and deputy assessors in his county before April 1st for consultation and shall give such instructions to them as shall tend to uniformity in the action of the assessors.

The supervisor of assessments is granted the same power as assessors to assess, make changes or alterations in the assessment of property.

It, therefore, follows that the County Treasurer should have a general knowledge of the values of all classes of property.

My wide experience in different lines of business activity exceptionally tends to qualify me for just such a position.

Fred R. Adams Is Running Strong For Nomination

As the race for nominations nears the close it might not be amiss to present to the voting public a brief history of the life of Fred R. Adams who has entered the race for the nomination for Probate Judge on the Republican ticket.

Mr. Adams was born at Lowando McLean county, Illinois, February 1 1884. He is the son of William B. and Jennie L. Adams, pioneer residents of Will county, Illinois. Mr. Adams was married in Joliet in September, 1906 to Hattie I. Darragh, only daughter of Thomas A. and Minnie L. Darragh, lifetime residents of Joliet.

Mr. Adams started work when he was sixteen years of age, but later returned to school and took up a business course, becoming a Certified Public Accountant. He then completed his high school course, and took up the study of law. After graduating from the Hamilton Law School of Chicago, he passed the Illinois Bar examination in July, 1916.

Mr. Adams served in the capacity of Assistant to the late Judge Drew for a period of five years, prior to the time of opening a law office of his own. His term as Assistant Probate Judge was from 1919 to 1924. He has been engaged in the practice of law for the past ten years.

In addition to his legal work he has had decidedly valuable experience in the commercial field. He was connected with the Freight Accounting department of the Michigan Central railroad for more than five years and with the Will County National bank of Joliet, as accountant, for over nine years.

Mr. Adams has been a prominent figure in Will County civic activities for a number of years. He is a member of the Joliet Chamber of Commerce, of Matteson Lodge No. 175, A. F. and A. M., Joliet Commandery No. 4, K. T. Ansar Temple Order of Mystic Shrine, Joliet Elks' Lodge No. 196 and the Modern Woodmen of America.

Mr. Adams has always been active in Republican organization politics, having served as precinct committeeman for both the 4th and 5th precincts, as well as being an ardent worker for clean, fair and just Republican office holders. He has been instrumental in assisting many of the present office holders in securing their offices.

Those who know Mr. Adams can vouch for his attitude in matters of public service. To those who do not know him, we take this means of unhesitatingly recommending him. Fred R. Adams, without doubt will prove a worthy successor to the office of the late Judge Drew. He deserves your vote, and he is well fitted for this work.

TO THE VOTERS OF WILL COUNTY:

Dear voters of Will County:—

The coming primaries is going to be a show down between the Christian thinking people and the followers of the lawless class.

On which side do you consider yourself?

In a verse from the Holy Bible it is stated:—"I beseech you therefore brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service".

It is a known fact that what Will County needs, is a Sheriff with the qualities and thought, derived from this verse of our beloved book of the laws of God. There is such a man as a candidate for the Sheriff's Office of Will County. Mr. A. M. Weston.

Does patriotism mean anything to the Christian people of this County?

Does our Flag of the good old United States of America mean anything to the decent and respectable people of this County?

Did you ever see Old Glory floating in the gentle breeze out in front of a road house or a house of ill fame?

Does it not make your blood curdle just a little, when you know that the things that are going on in side these places are strictly against the laws of our Country and still they have the disrespect to display our Flag, that means so much to all Christian American people.

Who knows that some night one of our own beloved daughters might be lured to such a place and started on the downward path which means ruin for her, and also think of the sorrow that would bring to that girl's mother and father. This very thing has happened.

Sometime one of our own sons might visit one of these hell holes and might return seemingly alright. But he might meet some of these so-called specimens of humanity who frequent these places, who think of a life as nothing, and this boy is either ruined for life or he may receive a death blow which is sure to bring sorrow and regret to some boy's mother and father. This thing also has happened.

Therefore, dear parents, think of your own boys and girls and think how all these things can be wiped out for our children's sake.

Mr. Weston is a man big enough and his followers will assist him to bring these things to an end if you will co-operate with us by helping to place him in an office where it would be possible to do the right and proper thing for you and I, by cleaning up these places which are endeavoring to ruin our younger generation.

Now dear friends, consider the real meaning of Law and Order and cast your votes for Mr. A. M. Weston for Sheriff of Will County at the primaries Tuesday April 13, 1926 for your families sake if nothing else.

Respectfully,
Glenn W. Folkers

COMPLICATIONS

SYNOPSIS.—Traveling by canoe on the Mississippi, on his way to Biloxi, in the early days of the settlement of Louisiana, William Brampton, English spy, known to Indians and settlers as the "White Indian," sees a Natchez Indian post a declaration of war against the French. For his own purposes, he hastens to Biloxi to carry the news to Bienville, French governor. Brampton meets an old friend, Joe Labrador, Indian halfbreed, who warns him Bienville has threatened to hang him as a spy. Brampton refuses to turn back. He falls in with Jules and Basile Mattor, on their way to Biloxi to secure wives from a ship, the Maire, bringing women from France. At Biloxi Brampton protects a woman from a sergeant's brutality. She tells him she is Claire Dahlskaar, picked up in a raid in Paris. Evidently well bred and educated, she is a mystery to Brampton. He intervenes to prevent a man, English, known as "Old Six Fingers," following her to New Orleans. A Frenchman, Francois Narbonne, slightly demented by stories he has heard of the riches of the New World, introduces himself. Bienville accuses Brampton of treachery, but the latter secures a respite from death by revealing the Natchez declaration of war. He is to await the arrival of a former companion, Damoan the Fox, who will exonerate or condemn him. Damoan has documents proving Brampton an English spy. Brampton receives a message from Claire, begging him to help her reach the English settlements. Brampton trusts Narbonne with a note to Claire promising to meet her at New Orleans. He plans his escape. A struggle. Brampton wrests the incriminating papers from Damoan and escapes from Biloxi. He meets the Mattors and they go to New Orleans in a sailing packet. At the landing place Brampton again encounters Joe Labrador, whom he sends to bring Claire to him. Brampton questions her closely, but she will tell him little of her history. With Labrador, Brampton and Claire leave in two canoes for the English settlements. Claire turns out to be a creature of moods and a terrible handicap in a race for life.

"One must catch the fish first," was the quiet response. "Besides, I placed the wood on the blaze monsieur started. The coals will be ready."

"All the wood?" I sharply demanded.

"She burned it all," she said. "A big fire, my line demore, my attention. After a brief fight I landed a catfish."

"She waited until I had secured my hook and coiled my line; then she said:

"The wood was to burn?"

"Yes, yes. But not all at once. A little at a time."

"I was not to know without being told," she said with much dignity. "If monsieur will be explicit another time perhaps I will do better. But wood! La! La! There is nothing but wood. Surely one does not have to be sparing of wood in this land!"

I hesitated whether to explain the danger of big fires and much smoke being seen by an enemy, or to wait and after acting as my own fire-tender for a while, see if she did not learn her lesson by observation.

I Darted My Gaze on the River. I Discovered Nothing Until She Stood Close at My Side and Pointed a Finger.

"If we have finished with the matter of the fire," she quietly resumed, "I would like to ask monsieur the meaning of that object which floats upstream across the dying patch of sunlight."

I darted my gaze on the river. I discovered nothing until she stood close at my side and pointed a finger; then I saw it, a canoe, far out and presumably hunting for dead water on the opposite shore.

"Indians. Probably Humas. We are in their country," I told her.

"Are they wicked? Will they trouble us?" she demanded, glancing up into my face.

"Not a bit." Nor was I afraid of Indians, for I had many friends among the river-people, including the Humas.

Returning my gaze to the river I was troubled to observe the canoe was making no progress toward the opposite shore. And only white men, ignorant of the river, would skirt the edge of the mighty current and barely hold their own, when easy paddling was to be enjoyed along the shore.

"Now one can hardly see them," she cried.

"We'll go back and cook our fish," I said. The canoe was heading toward us, thus making it appear to be a speck. And I had no doubt the smoke from our generous fire had attracted the voyageurs' attention. If Damoan and his companions were on the same side with the intervening forest would prevent his seeing the smoke. It was his manito against mine, and I was hampered by an irresponsible girl-woman.

CHAPTER VIII

What the Smoke Brought.

Even if the distant canoe was making for our smoke I did not see how I could break camp and hide in the forest, or take to the pirogue. Had I been alone the problem of avoiding the two men would have been child's play; but the girl would hold me back in the woods, while to continue in the pirogue would bring the men upon us. I was convinced they could not be some of Damoan's men, and this belief reconciled me somewhat to meeting them. On reaching the fire I hurriedly cleaned the fish. The girl watched my preparations with a little grimace. I feared she was overfastidious.

I broiled the fish on the coals and served it on two clean pieces of bark. She sat back from the fire and tentatively nibbled at some smoked meat but refused the fish. This was an arraignment of my rough-and-ready cooking, and provoking because she had made no offer to do the squaw-work herself. I was beginning to realize how entirely useless this young person was when it came to caring for herself. For one raised in poverty the instinct of self-preservation seemed to be meagerly developed. Of course, her hands should have told me that at the beginning.

She eyed the tough smoked meat disapprovingly; then bravely remarked:

"The fire burned well."

"Exceedingly well, mademoiselle!"

Another, and a longer pause; then she was timidly remarking:

"There came to me the absurd notion that monsieur was displeased because I used the wood. But I tell myself there is much wood, enough for all France. Also, the more wood the more coals. What have I done that is wrong?"

"Nothing that is wrong. Only this fire—I asked the wood to be fed on a little at a time. You put it all on at once."

"But it made a good fire, monsieur. You have said it yourself. I fear you are overnice in your exactions."

"I only mention it because the heavy smoke is drawing the strange canoe to our shore, and soon we shall have visitors," I gently explained. "I would have said nothing this time, but I did not want mademoiselle to be taken by surprise, and, perhaps, alarmed."

"This awful country, where the simplest act may bring death!" she dramatically whispered.

I smiled reassuringly.

"Hardly death, or we would not be here waiting. It is nothing—these strangers coming. I only mention them so mademoiselle will not be startled."

"You have your musket close my your side, as if you feared! I, too, will be ready."

And she pulled the sheathed dirk from her bosom and allowed it to hang outside her blouse. Then as an inspiration: "But the log boat! We should hide it. Then they could not find us."

"Now that they have seen the smoke it is better that they find us," I answered. "If we should disappear they would find the fire, and they would go on up the river and tell of the deserted camp. It would be bad for them to tell such news to Damoan the Fox."

Finishing my fish, I took my gun and said:

"Mademoiselle's courage is fine. She will sit where she is while I withdraw to one side."

"I do not understand," she faltered.

"By this time the two men will be landing near our pirogue. They will reconnoiter cautiously. I must get them to the fire to see who they are, to make sure they carry no tales ahead of us."

"But would you leave me here alone?"

"Only as bait for the trap into which they must walk. As soon as they break cover I will be by your side."

"Monsieur does not go far away?"

"Only inside the trees. Have courage. Nothing shall harm you."

"I am not afraid of men," she coldly replied, now sitting very erect. "It is the land, the great river, the unnamable loneliness, that brings fear. But I shall not disgrace you."

The grande dame air in a doll; and yet she carried it off most excellently. I took my musket and slipped into cover and waited. I heard the two men climbing the bluff long before they should have betrayed themselves. The carelessness, or awkwardness, of their approach told me they were not coureurs de bois. This left them colonists from New Orleans, sent in blundering pursuit of me; and I was confident I could soon send them to the right about.

Now they were passing through the last fringe of bushes encircling the fire, and the girl suddenly gave a shrill scream. As I glided forward to close the trap I heard a rough voice yell in English:

"Blas't my eyes if it ain't her! Ahoy, lass, where's your convoy?"

"Here!" I spoke up, stepping into the firelight, my musket across my left arm.

The girl was crouching behind a log and from her face one would have thought she was facing a panther. Old Six Fingers, more apish than ever, stood leering at her, his yellow snags showing in an ugly grin. On recognizing me he lowered his arm, and with a scowl growled:

"So it's you, is it?"

"Ho, Monsieur Brampton, we meet again!" loudly greeted Narbonne, lunging clear of a grapevine. "Behold, I give you the freedom of my river! Mademoiselle, command me. I throw myself at your feet."

She rose and seated herself on the log in an effort to recover her dignity, but never allowing her frightened eyes to stray long from the grinning face of Six Fingers.

"Monsieur Narbonne was so good as to do me a service in la Nouvelle Orleans. His presence is always most welcome," she nervously assured the Frenchman.

"We go up the river to find the country of Acaanibas, where the diamonds grow on rose-bushes, and the women are almost as beautiful as mademoiselle," prattled Narbonne with a smirk at the girl.

"And how was I picked up well-said 'convoy,'" grinned Six Fingers.

And he broke into one of his horrible sea doggerel and began chanting:

Heave-ho! And the devil
He sits in the sun!
Hurrah, bullets, for the Spanish main!
Heave-ho! And the red blood
From white throats will run!
Hurrah!

Narbonne was nearest to him, and with a backhanded sweep he stilled the vicious lips and sent Six Fingers over backward.

Now, I had no desire for either of the two to be traveling ahead of me. Narbonne would not wittingly harm me, but he was eccentric, to say the least. His companion was capable of any infamy if left unwatched. So I affected the role of pacificator, and said:

"Let bygones be bygones. Six Fingers forgot his sea-ditties are not for young ears. He will not forget again. Come, come, men; you'll need stout hearts for your journey to the Acaanibas."

Six Fingers pressed his fingers to his split lips and made animal noises. Narbonne was staring at him coldly, one hand on the hilt of his sword. The old villain essayed something intended for an affable smile, and croaked:

"Rough day, mate; but I'm used to rough living and rough ways. I was forgetting the lass. I'll stay forward after this. And there's a jug of brandy in the boat what I'll overhaul."

I signaled for Narbonne to let him go, for his departure would give me a chance to talk alone with the Frenchman. Once Six Fingers had disappeared toward the edge of the bluff I drew Narbonne farther apart from the girl and said:

"You know I am being hunted. Perhaps you do not know that there are those ahead whom I fear more than all those remaining behind. I do not know how far I can trust your companion, but to you I tell this: At Point Coupee, a day's journey from here, the river makes a big loop. My enemies will, I believe, follow the main channel. There is a small bayou, or canal, not more than six feet wide and usually choked with drift at the opening. If I can reach that unseen and cut across the loop I will save a day. It is at Point Coupee I plan to get ahead of my pursuers."

Narbonne stiffly answered:

"Monsieur, I have an equity in this cursed river. I am a landed proprietor. I have invested a hundred thousand livres in this country. I am responsible for law and order. I shall go with you to protect you."

He said it as if standing in the center of broad ancestral acres, as if an army of minions was ready to carry out his every wish. And his heart was as honest in its purpose as if he had commanded the obedience and servility paid to Louis XIV in his lifetime.

I tried to thank him for carrying my note to Mademoiselle Dahlskaar, but he would not permit, declaring:

"Nay, not so. The thanks are for me to utter. It gave me the rarest pleasure to speak with mademoiselle again. I am in your debt."

The girl now shyly advanced and extended a hand to Narbonne, saying: "I have the brave Frenchman to thank again."

The absurd fellow was all but kneeling as he reverently kissed the slim hand, his cap gathering more grime from the forest-mold. And I was pop-eyed to observe how calmly she accepted his homage. She retired to her log, pulling us along after her by the exquisite charm of her manner. It caused me grim amusement, and some chagrin, to realize she waited until Narbonne was present before exercising the height of her charm. With a glance to make sure Six Fingers was not within hearing she confessed:

"Messieurs, I am much afraid of that man."

Narbonne bowed and turned to leave us, but I seized his arm and detained him. He roughly shook off my grasp and whispered:

"Did you not hear? I have endured the little beast, but surely mademoiselle should not be annoyed."

She understood this byplay and was between us. "If you have respect for the women of France you will dismiss

Gone to Davy Jones

The expression "Davy Jones' Locker," is used among sailors to denote the bottom of the ocean, especially as the grave of those drowned at sea. "Davy Jones" is the sailors' synonym for death, and hence to say of a person that is dead, that he has gone to "Davy Jones' locker."

"This same Davy Jones, according to the mythology of sailors, is the fiend that presides over all the evil spirits of the deep, and is seen in various shapes warning the devoted wretch of death and woe."—Snollett's Peregrine Pickle.

Is your car a General Motors Car?

IF YOU own a Chevrolet, a Pontiac, an Oldsmobile, an Oakland, a Buick or a Cadillac, you own a General Motors car.

"But what," you may ask, "does that mean to me?" It means just this:

General Motors is a family of companies building motor cars and trucks and such other famous automotive products as Fisher Bodies, Delco and Remy electrical systems, Harrison radiators and AC spark plugs. Still other General Motors products are Delco-Light electric power plants and Frigidaire electric refrigerators. Many-Titled Monarch

Regal Even in Death

A few unarmed Abyssinians, attracted by the clamor of music and shouting, mustered courage enough to approach the standard which waved so easily in the mountain gale, and on beholding one of their countrymen on the ground, they bent over the body, but quickly recoiled with dismay on their faces, exclaiming, "Tedros!" "Tedros!"

The words attracted the attention of every one, and together they rode toward the body, jostling each other in the endeavor to obtain a glimpse of him the natives styled "Tedros, Negus Negashi of Ethiopia."

And what did they see? The body of a native seemingly half famished, clad in coarse upper garments, dingy with wear and ragged with tear, covering undergarments of clean linen, says the London Chronicle.

The face of deep brown was the most remarkable one in Abyssinia; it bore the appearance of one who had passed through many anxious hours. His eyes, now overspread with a deathly film, gave evidence yet of piercing power for which they were celebrated. The mouth was well defined and thin-lipped. The lower lip was well adapted to express scorn, and a trace of it was still visible. As he gasped his last, two rows of white teeth were disclosed. Over his mouth two strong lines arched to a highly aquiline nose. The nostrils expanded widely as he struggled to retain the breath which was rapidly leaving him. The face was broad, high cheek-boned, with a high, prominent forehead and overhanging eyebrows. The hair was divided into three large plaits extending from the forehead to the back of the neck, which latter appeared to be a very tower of strength. The body measured five feet and eight inches, and was muscular and broad-chested. There was a character about the features denoting great firmness or obstinacy mingled with ferocity; but perhaps the latter idea was suggested upon remembering the many cruelties ascribed to him. And thus was it that we saw the remains of him whom men called Theodore, emperor of Abyssinia, the descendant of Menelik; son of Solomon, king of kings, lord of earth, conqueror of Ethiopia, regenerator of Africa and savior of Jerusalem, now lying dead by his own hand!

Truth Destroys Romance

A story that went the rounds in connection with "Sir Loin," an educational film prepared by the Department of Agriculture, was to the effect that King Arthur, on seeing his favorite cut of beef served at a meal to which he came hungry from the hunt, rose at the table round, drew his sword, and dubbed the meat Sir Loin. Commenting on this in a letter to the New York Times, Ernest P. Horowitz of Hunter college wrote: "Romance springs from illusion. Of course the etymology whereon the legend is founded is utterly absurd. The first syllable of the disputed word is French, sur; Latin, super. In the Fourteenth century the French termed the upper part of the loin of beef surlonge, whence our sirloin."

Guards Pupils' Health

Portable scales occupying the rear seat of his automobile accompany the superintendent of Grant county (Wash.) schools on all his tours of inspection. He plans to weigh every grade child in the county twice every year. He has found 25 per cent of the pupils to be underweight. A meal-planning chart presented to each teacher, and health meetings for parents held at school centers, were parts of his health program. In schools visited the second time the underweight percentage had been reduced or eliminated entirely, and in some of the high schools the teeth of the pupils had been attended to and diseased tonsils and adenoids removed.

Turning Over His Money

"Sam, is your master a good farmer?"
"Oh, yes, fass-rate farmer; he makes two crops in one year."
"How is that, Sam?"
"Why, he sell all his hay in de autumn, make money once, den in de spring he sells de hides of de cattle dat die for want of de hay, and make money twice."

A Change

Nine weddings out of ten the society editor can guess correctly the selections that will be played and sung, preceding, during and following the ceremony. However, the other day she found a new one. Along with the program of the usual bridal airs of "Oh, Promise Me," "At Dawning," "To the Wild Rose," etc., was the number "Adore, and Be Still."—Indianapolis News.

ROGERS FOR SHERIFF

Joseph Rogers of Braidwood, the well-known supervisor from Reed Township, is a strong candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff at the Primaries to be held on April 13, 1926.

Since announcing his candidacy last September he has conducted an active campaign, meeting personally thousands of voters from every part of the county. He has made many new friends and strong supporters.

Joseph Rogers is the only candidate for Sheriff outside of Joliet. He believes that since the country people pay most of the taxes, they should be entitled to at least some of the county offices.

Joseph Rogers was born in Braidwood over 46 years ago and Will County has always been his home. He attended the Braidwood city schools till about 14 years old when he went into the mines to help keep his aged parents. He is one of Braidwood's leading citizens, always associated in community improvement activities.

Twelve years ago he was first elected a supervisor by an overwhelming vote and since then has served Reed Township continuously on the County Board of Supervisors, a credit to himself, his community, and the whole county.

He served on nearly all the leading county committees, gaining experience that fits him for the office he seeks, knowing as he does, the duties of that office and the county's needs.

Joseph Rogers was always a strong advocate of Good Roads. He served four years on the County Good Roads Committee during which time he fought consistently for a fair distribution of the County Road Fund, never losing sight of the fact that oftentimes the poorest communities, like the one he served, needed the greatest help in "pulling themselves out of the mud."

Joseph Rogers is the candidate of no group or faction. He seeks the support of all good Republicans. He refers the voters to his many associates on the County Board during his long term of service, if in doubt of his honesty, ability or fairness.

A vote for Joseph Rogers for Sheriff of Will County on April 13, 1926 will be a vote for the fair administration of that office, and your support will be appreciated.

SUPPORT ROGERS FOR SHERIFF. Should Joliet have all the County offices? No! Then vote right at the April 13 Primaries. VOTE FOR ROGERS FOR SHERIFF. Experienced, qualified and your candidate. —Adv.

MOKENA M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Glen T. Beatty, Pastor
Church School at 10:30 A. M.
Evening Worship at 7:00 P. M.

The public will think the pastor very changeable to again place the services at 7:00 o'clock. We had planned to change the time of worship to 7:30 at the beginning of April. However, things have been so irregular, that we are asking that for the next two Sundays, at least, the people will be good enough to come at 7:00 o'clock. This will enable us to have some special things that we would not be able to have at the later time. We will no doubt change the time of service at that time, change from standard to Day-light saving, the last Sunday of April.

EASTER PROGRAM NEXT SUN.

Due to the prolonged winter we thought best to postpone our Easter Church School program one week. Next Sunday morning at 10:30 our program will be given. We have a beautiful program and if the weather does not prohibit we expect a very successful time. We invite all the parents and friends to this program. We desire also the loan of plants for decorating the church. Please bring them or notify us where they are.

Our Easter service last Sunday evening was well attended in spite of bad weather. Mr. Mendoza was with us and much appreciated. Mr. Lathrop and Mrs. Hamilton added much to the service with their singing. We are proud of our local talent. Two of our fine girls joined the church at this service: they were, Eloise Balaz and Marjorie Hamilton. Iris Hamilton was christened. It is our hope that not only more of our young people will definitely connect themselves with the church, but that many of our older people will take such steps. We must constantly strengthen our organizations for His work.

The pastor will preach next Sunday evening at 7:00 o'clock on the subject: "Our Christian Civic Pride."

NOMINATION FOR

COUNTY JUDGE

The hope of America depends upon the judgment used by its citizens in the selection of men fit for public office.

"The voter should study the list of prospective office holders and coolly consider their fitness for the places they are asking be given them."
Herald-News Editorial.

"FITNESS" is determined by training and experience. Above all else the man who sits upon the County Bench and determines what shall be done with unfortunate children and also decides upon the legality and fairness of the taxes which we pay should have behind him training and experiences.

Ralph C. Austin, candidate for the Republican nomination for County Judge has had just the training and experiences that is necessary for the position he is seeking. During his fourteen years practice as a lawyer he has tried hundreds of cases in the County Court. He is regarded as an expert in special assessments. He has also made a special study of juvenile cases and is the author of a program which will put this county in the fore ranks of those handling the problems of children in a modern and efficient manner.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rinke who has been at the St. Joseph hospital, Joliet the past week following an operation for mastoid trouble, is improving.

Chas. Reeser and family who have been occupying the flat above the Mokena Hardware store, moved to New Lenox Saturday, locating in Hacker's sub-division where they purchased a house and lot last fall.

The highways about Mokena are still in an impassable condition in many places following the recent heavy blizzards. Monday afternoon the Heisler & Junge bread truck of Chicago got stalled in a deep snow tracks into the highway and he got near the Cappel crossing. The driver had tried to drive on the Rock Island passing track, but the cattle guards forced him to back off the tracks onto the highway and he got stuck. It was late at night before the truck was released from the drift. One wheel was broken off the truck in the struggle to get out of the snow.

MOKENA M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Last Friday night Rev. Forrest A. Fields of the Tinley Park M. E. church was the principal speaker at a joint business and social meeting of the Sunday School. The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Rinke. After the address by Mr. Fields, which was enjoyed by all, a covered dish supper provided by each person attending was enjoyed very much. We can understand why Mr. Fields is so plump and our pastor so slender--after seeing the large amount he ate.

Mr. Fields spoke of the need of religious training in the life of the child and brought to our attention the opportunity for Christian service in the teaching staff of the Sunday school. But he emphasized the need of whole consecration of the teacher. Study and training to each are vitally important, but cannot take the place of complete Christian character in the teacher he said. If one would serve Jesus in such an important capacity, he should be willing to sacrifice from ordinary pleasures in order that he have time for proper study and that he might spend much time in the training of his pupils. Rev. Fields made a challenging appeal for consecration to this most important work of the church, in the name of the individual, the church, the nation, the world and most of all for Jesus, the master. We hope Mr. Field's will come often.

The Mokena school opened Monday morning after being closed for a week for spring vacation.

The St. John Evangelical church is getting out a new monthly eight page paper called "The Booster", the first number appearing last week. The little paper is devoted to the news and activities of the church and is full of interest. The News-Bulletin is printing this new publication.

Easter Sunday found the church more than crowded with parents and children and flowers. The special feature in the program was a playlet by the primary department given under the direction of Mrs. Wagner and Mrs. Reese. These little folks presented themselves as bulbs and flowers. The boys, Howard Utt, Thomas Wilson, Harold Davis and Edward Ruether were dressed as bulbs and planted by the Gardner, Betty Winang Then Betty Wind came along and awakened bulbs which changed into flowers. Gladys Olson, Gwendolyn Cordes, Vera and Clara Harnew were dressed as flowers, daffodil, Easter lily, tulip and hyacinth. The whole school presented their opening exercises, singing an Easter song, repeating the 23rd Psalm and answering questions asked by the supt. The second feature of the day was the 100 plants of begonias given to the church school members by the young people's society. These potted plants were built up in a cross and at the close of the service were distributed by the young people. A third feature, was the choir which sang an anthem, "Ye Bells of Easter Day" by Louis R. Dressler and a carol by A. P. Howard. Mr. Peltier assisted in the singing by the playing of his violin.

CAPPEL—In sad and loving memory of my dear wife and beloved mother, Clara A. Cappel, who departed this life one year ago today, April 9, 1925

Sadly, Sadly we have missed her, Daily long to see her face, For in our hearts so full of sorrow None can ever take her place.

We loved her well, no tongue can tell How much we loved her and so well God loved her too, and thought it best To take her to His home and rest

Our one comfort is in knowing That our loss is mother's gain

For in that land to which she journeyed, There's no sorrow, there's no pain

Up beyond those pearly portals In that land so bright and fair, She is happy with the angels And is waiting for us there. Signed: Husband and Children.
